Winter Prayer Letter

February 28, 2024

Dear supporting churches and friends,

As I sit down to write this overdue prayer letter, it amazes me to already be at the end of February. Time flies so quickly overall, but stages of life seem to last awhile. That is what it seems like, at least dealing with little kids. We have had quite the adventures with Quinn and Cameron already with ER visits for stitches and multiple pediatrician visits this year already, but God has been good in providing help when we have needed it.

This year has already been busy with travel and work. We have been to California, North Carolina, Florida, and Michigan. March will see me jumping between Arizona and Ohio. April will see us around Texas and Indiana. Please pray for us as we travel many miles over the next several months.

The boys have had good checkups recently with their respective doctors. Cameron had another ultrasound in January that came back normal. He will have another one in April. Quinn had a good follow up with his neurologist. The goal for him is to get to three years seizure free. He is coming up on one year since his seizure last March. Please continue to pray for both of their health needs.

Please pray for more laborers. We are in need of more men in Seedline. We have multiple requests for new churches to get involved and we are running out of weeks to do projects. We need God to work in the hearts men to come help us.

We are excited about several projects we have going on right now. We are working on a container for Thailand which will reach Mandarin speaking people. We are working on a New Zealand project which is a big project to cover the country. Pray for us as we complete these projects to see God's Word go out around the world.

Your missionaries,
Tyler, Shannon, Quinn, and
Cameron Bridges
